BLACK PLACE, WHITE SPACE, AND THE LIMITS OF “GENTRIFICATION”

This research focuses on the experiences of longtime Black residents of a historically Black neighborhood in Portland, Oregon that recently became majority white and middle class. I argue that gentrification is an inadequate framework for explaining both how the neighborhood changed and what those changes mean to longtime residents.

January 29, 2024
12 PM
KRAFT HALL 341

Register today at https://caaas.rice.edu/events